RAILROAD ACCIDENT.

CHICAGO, August 12.—News from various parts of the Indian country indicates that the Chevennes, Comanches and Kiowas, seeing formidable preparations made to punish them for their recent depredations, ask for peace, and for the military to call it even. Orders have, however, been issued not to let these hostile bands enter their reservations, but for troops to follow and punish them wherever Beecher's Statement.

New York, August 13.—Beecher's statement to the Investigating Committee is published, and is very full and explicit. He begins with the ac-count of his first acquaintance with Tilton, and proceeds to describe the character of his intimacy with Tilton and family. He declares his affection for Tilton, describes his efforts to advance him, and finally to save him from utter ruin. He says he now OF LOS ANGELES. sees, however, that Tilton, through the whole difficulty, has been a selfish, reckless schemer. Every effort which he made to restore Tilton to his home and former high position served only to plunge him into new and tormenting complications. The vilest slanders were set adrift, and the tattle of a crowd of malicious women was constantly poured into his ears. He lost every remnant of faith in Tilton, but still tried, like a brother or father, to befriend his family. His only security seemed to rest in Moulton, and when Tilton's first charge was made, he demanded an investigation by the church. He wrote and spoke freely to Moulton; but explains some of the letters which have been published by saying that he inherits a tendency to sadness, the remains of positive hypochondria in his father and grandfather, and in certain moods of reaction the world seems blank to him. It was in such moods that some of his letters were written and some of his statements to Moulton made. He reiterates the denial of any act or thought of improper relations with Mrs. Tilton, but avows that as friend and pastor he did all in his power to soothe, cheer and encourage her in her great troubles. He says he knows his inno-cence but is still unable to prove it. A member of the Committee has been detailed to visit Moulton's house with him and evening the originals with him and examine the originals of all correspondence between the parties in the affair. The reports do not say that Beecher's statement was finished yesterday. Destructive Fire.

damages by the fire at the Fairview oil works last night is greater than was at first supposed. Two thousand one hundred barrels of crude oil were destroyed, and much other property. Total loss, $65,000 to $75,000; insurance $50,000 ance, $50,000.

Beecher Speaks. NEW YORK, August 13-2:30 P. M.-At this hour it has just been made known that the Plymouth Church Investigating Committee met in the back parlor of Beecher's residence, at 10 o'clock this morning, and that two stenographers are present. Beecher sat with the Committee and made his statements from notes which he held. He answered questions, put by members of the Committee, upon each point presented in the charges made by Tilton. At noon, the examination was interrupted by lunch, and was resumed at 1 o'clock. At this hour Beecher is still under examina-Railroad Accident.

The Governor and the Mayer. New York, August 14.—Governor Dix has asked the Aldermen, who lately preferred charges against Mayor Havemeyer, if they desire an investigation. They reply in the negative, and hold that the admission of the Mayor that the charges are true, makes up a case, and that it only remains for the Governor to act upon the charges and answer.

Councilmen.

An article in a late number of the Evening Express while it does not directly attack the members of our present Council, certainly indicates that it is the opinion of the writer that they should not be re-elected. The uncomplimentary reflections of our cotemporary upon these gentlemen seem to us to be undeserved. If we go back a little less than four years in the history of our municipal affairs, we find that the City Treasury was quite empty, and that to meet our current expenses it was necessary to issue scrip, which would not sell at par nor within thirty-three per cent. of it. A glance at our present financial affairs shows that we have no scrip on the market, and the city's liabilities are promptly paid in coin. Men who went into office under the circumstances named and have so arranged the affairs of the city so as to make the showing our Councilmen now does, may not be as "wide between the eyes" as a mule nor be able to evince the mental ponderosity of the Express editor, but they have done their city some service, and as they work without fee or salary, they are at least deserving of our thanks for economy if not for enterprise. The extra taxation that has been imposed since the election of the present Councilmen explains the position of the Regents has been assumed by a direct vote of the people, and if there are complaints at the imposition of these taxes, they cannot be directed at the Councilmen. If the present City Fathers have erred, they have done so in favor of the masses. They have practiced economy perhaps a little too rigidly, but economy is a virtue, and by practicing it we become wealthy. Under the circumstances we think the Council has done well-so well that the members merit the thanks of the community. What should be done in the future we shall allude to hereafter.

Water, Water.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. BEAU-DRY's water works were set in operation, and in a few minutes a jet of water fifty feet high from the top of the high hill near Temple street, astonished those who happened to turn their eyes in that direction. The problem, "Can water he had on the geles presiding. All the Granges hill lands?" which has so long puzzled our citizens, is solved. Mr. BEAUDRY's enterprise and tireless en- represented by about forty duly acergy have given us the solution, and credited delegates, in addition to water, any amount of water, flows which a large number of Fourth Deover the highest lands to the west of the city. The water is now high up on Temple street within four blocks of Main street. Along Temple street building will commence immediately, and within a very short time we shall see hundreds of cottage houses dotting the high lands, and long before the croakers have passed away we shall see those cottages surrounded by groves, orchards and flower gardens, for all of which the city will be indebted to the enterprise of a man who, if he had listened to the advice of many, would have adopted the safe plan of loaning his money at two per cent. and let the hill lands remain barren. Mr. DAVIES is not only satisfied, but quite delighted, with the fruit yield in this county. He declares with enthusiasm that he never saw better fruit than is to be found in great abundance about the city and in various parts of the county. He also says that all kinds of vegetables of which there is a surplus in the market can be dried to the advantage of producers, and he has found a market for all he can get to-day. An Insult to the People. The removal of Professor CARR from the State University cannot be regarded in any other light than that of open contempt for the wishes of the people. His dismissal is the work of a ring-a monied, speculative, banking ring-composed of men who fancy themselves members of a monied aristocracy, before which the laboring masses of the State must bow down in masses of the State must bow down in meekness and humiliation. The struggle has not been to depose Professor CARR so much as to sap the vitality of the only depratment in the University that could work the general benefit of the community-the department of Agriculture. The study of such a plebeian profession or calling as that of farming, is distasteful to the the elegant professors who tell of the stars, the far-off constellations; how the old Greeks wrote, and the Ancient Latins spoke; of the interior of the earth; the rings of Saturn, and the bark on the north pole, but not one of them contributes a bit of information that will cause the growth of two blades of grass where one grows now. That is the task of plain people like Professor CARR. The University is an aristocratic institution. Its tone must be maintained, and to do this the farmer's friend is expelled. A Gossipy Letter from a New Corres pondent, "Lou Lewis"-The Original Garden of Eden-Those " Horrid Men" from Los Angeles-"Zoe Zella" Gone from the Beach-Things in General.

EDITOR HERALD: Zoe Zella, Dumnorix, Corry Es Pondent, Right Away, and a number of oth whose names we cannot ers pretend to fathom or enumerate, have written and re-written up our fair attempt anything further on the theme; but love, real love, for the spot where we have whiled away so have passed in weariness and ennui, pleads with us to cast our mite into the vast fountain of letter writing. Yesterday, while lying upon the panse of water, we could not but think that indeed there might perhaps be some truth in the idea that somewhere among our verdant hills and lovely vales life first came, and imaginary as this may be, Santa Monica is to us

AN EDEN, As fine and fresh as the hour it stood complete from the hands of its Creator. Perhaps you, whose every moment is absorbed with the responsibilities of business, would ask us how we contrive to pass so many idle days pleasantly. Well, our days are not idle ones; and if they were, we venture to assert that the mere remembrance of the fact that before us stretched the grand old ocean and around us the much-loved cañon, would alone make them pleasant. Then we are quite a literary set down here, and the authors are consulted not a little. We have a poet with us (once a week, at least), and even the immaculate "Zoe" herself gives us a kindly word now and then to keep us light-hearted and free. By-the-by, have your ever seen "Zoe?" No? Well, let metell you something, then. You don't know anything about her, notwithstanding Dumnorix's halfdozen futile attempts to immortalize himself by giving a description. She is a sweet little woman, with her large brown eyes and curling, black hair, and after one view of her not even Dumnorix himself could convince you that "Zoe" is a SKELETON IN THE CLOSET. Santa Monica, August 11, 1874. Stabbing Affray.

About 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon another bloody affray occurred on Olvera street, north of the plaza, which little watering place, until perhaps it resulted in the death of a man whose may seem a vain endeavor for us to name is not known. The particulars of the affair, as near as we could gather them, are as follows: Frank Edwards, the man who did the stabmany hours that would otherwise bing, lives in a small room on Olvera street, with a woman named Maria Los Angeles Alvisa. He came home yesterday afternoon, and finding the unknown man in his room, ordered white, glistening shores that stretch him out. The man left for the time, the sight, lost in the boundless ex- and commenced making a disturbance. Both parties set upon Edwards, beat him and tore his shirt entirely from his body. At this juncture, Ed-wards drew a knife and stabbed one of his assailants, inflicting a deep wound in the left breast. The wounded man ran out of the room, up the street in a southerly direction and turning into the house of one Juan Trellis, fell dead. The other man also fled and succeeded in making his escape. Edwards was promptly arrested and lodged in jail. Another man, named James Wallace, who was a witness to the transaction, was also taken into custody. Edwards is a young man, perhaps twenty-five years of age, and of exceedingly low propensities, as would seem by his manner of life. He is described as a "bummer," and does not claim for himself any particular means of livelihood, though he has worked in a livery stable some. The man who was killed was somewhat older-probably twenty-eight or thirty. His name we have failed to learn, after the most diligent inquiry, but it is understood that he and his companion were both from the Monte. He wore a pair of fine boots, blue jeans pants, tucked inside of his boottops, and a grey woolen shirt. The body was removed to the jail-yard and held for an inquest, which will probably take place this morning.

About six o'clock we visited the prisoner in jail, and learned from him the facts of the case as we have given them, corroborated by the statements of others. Edwards admitted that all of the parties engaged in the fracas were under the effects of liquor, including himself and the woman Alvisa. His statements were somewhat confused, but appeared to be correct in the main.

New developments will doubtless be made at the inquest. Later we learn that the man who was killed bore the name of Frank jured innocents down here (whose ex- Tedrow, with an alias or two, and
